FOREWORD

WITH one aim in view—that of portraying within these pages the spirit of the Class of Nineteen Hundred and Thirty-one for the past years; to review the toils, the hopes, and the fears, with their culmination in worthwhile realities; to perpetuate the many friendships that have been made during four short, happy years at Moravian; and to create for those who follow a treasure chest of the traditions, ideals and achievements of Moravian—towards this aim has the Staff worked.

If, in the future years, this volume may be a source of inspiration to underclassmen, or, if those who have graduated from their Alma Mater may enjoy a moment of reminiscent pleasure in reviewing these pages,—our purpose, we feel, has been attained.

FAREWELL! Our independence has come! What does it mean? It means that we are free! After four long years of hard struggle against tremendous odds we have emerged victorious. We have suffered losses; many have fallen by the wayside in our struggle for very existence. This is our consolation. Our battle has been fought on friendly soil, Moravian. Here we entered as mere youths to uphold the highest ideals of our Alma Mater,—Truth, Honor and Light. When we first entered we did not realize the importance of these, but during our four years of work we have come to realize more fully the true significance of these ideals. Let us consider! Honor, Truth, Light. Have we fully considered how every day these have come into our life and how they shall continue to serve us in Life's School?

These are the ideals upon which Moravian was founded and these are the ideals upon which our future lives depend.

In our ranks we have formed many bonds of friendship. These friendships we have made not only with our classmates but also with our professors. Some will continue, many will end. Happily, but somewhat sadly, shall we recall those fond recollections of days beneath your hospitable shelter, O Moravian!

We shall take diverse paths in the world. Some of us will become famous, no doubt, while others will do great good for the world without great honor. But, no matter who we are, or what we do, or what we become, we shall be "Loyal to Life's ending."

EVELYN ESTELLE ALEXY

"Evie"

B. A. Bethlehem, Penna.

Liberty High School

"Sweet promptings into kindest deeds were in her very look."

Evelyn is a girl of unvarying moods, who has a charming quality of making one feel very much at ease in her presence. Her efficiency in financial matters has earned Evelyn the much coveted position of treasurer of the Senior Class. The cry of "Girls, don't forget your dues" has already made history.

In the matter of hobbies, Evelyn devotes herself to reading and the movies. During the four years of College, Evelyn has proved herself a sincere, constant and reliable person, both towards her friends, and in her duties. We do not know just what Evelyn plans to do, but we wish her luck in whatever she may undertake.

MARJORIE AGATHA BLISS

"Blissie"

B. A. Netcong, New Jersey

Lincoln High School,
Jersey City

"Her delight is in law and order."

If you should see some one running madly from one place to another, toes slightly turned in, and feet loudly pattering, that is "Blissie." And where is she going? Well, lots of places. Perhaps to the Post Office searching for another Arizona missive or making an attempt to be on time for an erstwhile date, or last and least, dashing to a class.

Speed is a virtue, but that isn't Marge's only one. Her scholastic record is nothing ordinary and her profits in this respect have been well earned.

When you need a confidant, tell your troubles to Marge. She is a good listener and can give excellent advice, keeping her mind unbiased. Did we say "Blissie" was a good listener? Yes, but she is a good talker, too. If you want proof, listen to her attempts over the telephone to soothe another lassie's frustrated male. Is Marge convincing? Well I guess!

DOROTHY VERNON BRETZ

"Dottie"

B. A. Allentown, Penna.
Easton High School

"She walks the waters, a thing of life;
And seems to dare the elements to strife."

"Dottie is the best-dressed girl in our class. Mention any up-to-the-minute fashion and "Dottie" is right up to the mark. And can she wear her clothes? She has the figure plus all the other attractive necessities.

Whenever exams come around, Dottie never worries; her name is always posted on the exemption list—lucky girl! Don't take her for the bookish type either for she is the exact opposite. Without the least bit of effort "Dottie" manages to get the much envied average of A.

"Dottie" is one of our popular young ladies and is kept very busy socially. As president of the Junior class, she certainly led us through a most eventful and delightful year. She is always in demand because of her likable disposition and sparkling personality.

"Dottie" intends to be a buyer and with all her charm she certainly will make her choice of a career successful. Here's to the future, Dottie, and your classmates wish you utmost success and happiness.

MARY ANN ELEK

"Mary Ann"

B. A. Bethlehem, Penna.
Liberty High School

"It's the songs ye sing, and the smiles ye wear,
That's a-makin' the sunshine everywhere."

Quite and unassuming—that is our Mary as we knew her four years ago. But Mary is no longer silent and unobtrusive. Instead her ready wit and jovial, good nature have won for her many friendships.

Mary, by no means resents the attentions of the opposite sex. All of which reminds us that instructors are probably not as obnoxious creatures as students are likely to regard them.

But, in spite of all her irrepressible desire to play, Mary also possesses the ability, the efficiency and determination to accomplish work when there is work to be done. With this same determination she ought to conquer worlds. So, here's to you, Mary!

EDITH K. EMERY

"EDIE"

B. A. White Haven, Pa.

Moravian Seminary

"I'd sit and sit a thousand years,
And rest myself—b'Gosh."

B'r-r-r—loudly ring the four alarm clocks! Edie will have many memories of old M. C. One of the many is the array of various alarm clocks in her room—which, nevertheless, are not sufficient to rouse her from her downy bed.

Silence in the class room; then all of a sudden a "What?" pops up. Yes, that's Emery just waking up in German class.

Edie's being is a tangled skein of the love of poetry, painting and sleeping. Most of the time she is silent, which is a considerable annoyance to the teachers. Edies a dreamer and no one but she knows what those dreams are.

Edie's a good pal to have; she's generous and full of fun. She is very droll and often invokes laughter from all sides. "Take life easy,"—that's Edie. If you see her walking aimlessly through the halls, with an absent look in her eyes, you'll know she's either in the throes of versification or else dreaming.

Edie has a particular haven of rest, and here's hoping that that which takes her there so often, may prove to bring the greatest happiness in her life.

GENEVIEVE ELIZABETH GIERING

"STEVE"

B. A. Bethlehem, Penna.

Liberty High School

"A tent with rustling breezes cool
Delights me more than palace high."

"Hyah, there!" and a merry slap resounds on your back as Steve goes whizzing by a pied at a rate of 60 miles per hour. "Steve" comes in with a bang, goes out with a bang, and keeps banging her way cheerfully along her own individual path with such dust that the casual bystander loses his casuality. She can fire questions and answers in history class with the rapidity of a machine gun and lose all sense of time and space while listening to soft Arabian music.

"Steve has, behind her breezy and apparently blase exterior, plenty of poetic and artistic talent which has not lain dormant during her four years of college. She has received high honor in one of the contemporary books of poetry, and her drawings are not without enviable merit. She possesses a wealth of good humor and candidness—and whether she writes scenarios or tears madly over the Sahara desert with a pack of camels, we take off our hats to her.

ELLEN DORIS GOODMAN

"NELL"

B. A. Bethlehem, Penna.

Liberty High School

"I live not in myself,
But become portion of that around me."

Nell has classic tastes. She never bothers with the hoi-polloi. Mediocrity never enters into this childs life; she goes in for the best that is to be had.

Nell is a creature of many moods; so many, in fact, that today she is a confirmed cynic—tomorrow she possesses illusions.

Naturally, we feel bound to mention the fact that Nell has excellent abilities as a student, but what is infinitely more important than that, she is a close observer, and an intelligent critic.

We would not be so rash as to prophesy concerning Nell's future. All that we can do is to make far-fetched and nebulous speculations. We are very, very curious about this hazy future. We wonder where Nell will be in this carousal, we wonder where we will be, and we wonder what our relationship to each other will be.

ELIZABETH REGINA HARTMAN

"LIZZIE"

B. A. Bethlehem, Penna.

Liberty High School

"Quick of tongue and quick of mind."

Lizzie, as she is known to all of us, is one of Moravian's intelligentsia. In fact, Lizzie has gone ahead and upset the old adage that blondes are shilly-shally, for she has stored in her cranium information which is beyond the grasp of the oldest and wisest. But from whence her vast knowledge hails we know not; for Liz is as innocent of course-crabbing as the rest of us are guilty of this taboo.

As much as we think we know of Lizzie, that is just how little we really do know of her. She is not an open book. We rarely understand what she thinks, feels or knows, but when on rare occasions she does enlighten us, we, at least, become aware of what she feels. Sometimes too well aware!

Liz could teach one and all of our fair sex, the ability of handling gently the most elusive as well as the most persistent of the brawnier sex. Our acquaintance with her is one of everlasting interest and is an endeavor to probe behind those dark piercing eyes. We do hope, Liz, that your friendship with us will outlive the four years we spent together at Moravian, because we are interested in you and as women, are curious as to what your next step shall be.

ELLA LORETTA HEWITT

"TERRY"

B. A. Bethlehem, Penna.

Liberty High School

"A disposition that's sweet and sound,
A girl who's a pleasure to have around"

"Little but mighty" suits Ella to perfection. Although she is small, she has to be mighty for she is President of Student Government and must maintain order. She has handled this office with great skill and dexterity. Such ability will help her in the school-teaching profession which she intends to enter.

Besides "ruling with an iron hand," Ella finds time for fun and jollity. She's just bubbling over with pep, and, consequently, keeps everybody else on the jump.

Ella is an excellent student, standing quite high in her class; but her thoughts are not on studying all the time. There are two other attractions which draw her from lessons. One is the piano, which is quite insignificant. The other, not so insignificant, is a certain little Chevy roadster. Ella has good intentions of becoming a teacher, but we're afraid wedding bells and not school bells will be calling her.

EVELYN CATHERINE KING

"EVIE"

B. A. Allentown, Penna.

Allentown High Srhool

"Pretty to walk with;
Witty to talk with;
And pleasant, too, to look on."

We want to introduce one of the sweetest of the Seniors, "Evie" King, a prospective school teacher. Evie comes to us every day from Allentown, but we all know that her heart is in Cincinnati. She is, for all that, a loyal Allentonian, and this is no easy matter in a class composed mostly of Bethlehemites.

Evelyn is a musician of unusual talent. She plays the piano very skillfully. Her vocal talent is evidenced by the high range of her notes. Incidentally, (and this is not meant to be disparaging,) the highest note she ever reached, was achieved on the memorable day when a wee mousie made his appearance, and the frightened Evie mounted the table in our day-room and vocalized at a pitch she has never equalled since.

In conclusion, we want to show our appreciation for a good all-rouund classmate. If it were not for Evie's unceasing labor as Editor of the Vignette, this worty volume could not have been published.

CATHARINE ISADORA KOFFEL

"KITTY"

B. A. Bethlehem, Penna.

Liberty High School

"Hers was the power to make us laugh,
Yet she was kind,
Hers was the power to portray others vividly,
Yet she could be herself."

In the midst of merry-making and laughter, there's Kitty—and usually the center of attraction. Who will ever forget her clever impersonations of actors and faculty? Or what would Kitty be without her "hyperbole" and facial expressions? Her humor is slow in coming, but it is lasting and very effective. Many classes have been brightened by her capers.

But there is a serious side to Kitty. Throughout her years at Moravian, she has been an earnest student, a skillful executive and a hearty supporter of all activities. She has been popular in all her undertakings and when this popularity extends beyond the walls of Moravian she becomes quite a heart-breaker.

Kitty is a lover of music and plays the violin beautifully. We sincerely hope that this beauty and harmony along with success follows her in her future years.

MIRIAM TILA LANDIS

"MIM"

B. A. Bethlehem, Penna.

Liberty High School

"Mistress of herself, though China fall."

"Ye Gods!" If we hear a soft voice saying this, we know Mim is somewhere around. Just as we recognize a flower by its scent, so we know Mim by this little phrase.

To many people Mim may seem rather aloof, but to her classmates who have learend to know her through four years of college, she is as friendly and good-natured a person as one could meet. If anyone has a problem to solve, Mim is the one to do it. No, she is not a palm reader or a crystal gazer, but is she good at mathematics! She could also convince you that a triangle is a square or a circle.

Mim has not only been active in her scholastic work, but she has also been a faithful member of the Glee Club and The Players. Nor must we forget the formidable opposition she furnished, while helping to break up the Junior-Freshman wedding.

At present Mim's big ambition seems to point toward the teaching profession, so here's good luck in all you undertake.

CAROLINE ELOISE McNAMEE

"Carol"

B. A. Phillipsburg, N. J.

Phillipsburg High School

"Her ways are ways of loveliness,
And all her paths are peace."

Restaurants and cats, music and books—these are her dearest companions. It is said one judges individuals by the things they like. Somehow, one never fails to think of Carol without thinking of all things fine and true—things that breathe of artistry, perfection and loveliness.

Doubtless, we all have heard of Carol's trolley-car invention which she accomplished by converting the coal-bin into a rumble-seat. In the realms of "trolleyology" she is certain to become a dominant personality.

Carol's judgment and opinion are highly respested by us, for she has proved herself a fine friend,—a worthy example. Her humor, too, is spontaneous and always on hand.

We hesitate to predict a future, for goodneess only knows what the fates will suggest to her. No doubt she will turn to the font of education for inspiration. Anyway, we hope that four years of hard work became for her four years of fun, friends, and findings. And what can a poor fortune teller's cards hold for you, Carol, but more fun, friends, and findings all the time?

DORIS KOEHL MILLER

"Dorrie"

B. A. Bethlehem, Penna.

Liberty High School

"Ready in heart and ready in hand."

Dorrie has certainly proved to her classmates that "all good things come in small packages." She is one of the most popular members of the class. Everyone loves her and it just isn't possible to get angry at her because she has such a lovable disposition. We have yet to see Dorrie's feelings ruffled or hear her speak an unkind word of anyone.

Dorrie is extremely modest and so it is difficult to find out everything she has done, but in an unostentatious manner she has been a true and steady worker in all pertaining to Moravian.

She evinced great ability as Editor of the Mirror and instituted many new changes. Her scholastic record is indeed an enviable one.

The opposite sex also seems to be very much attracted by Dorrie's good nature and joyous temperament. It seems almost unnecessary to wish good luck to one so destined to succeed—but here's to you, Dorrie.

GWYNETH CHRISTINE SAMUELS

"GWYN"

B. A. Bethlehem, Penna.

Liberty High School

"Always bright and merry."

Gwyn likes babies, dogs, chocolate ice cream and matinees on the afternoons when she has the most classes.

She is the frankest and most truthful girl in the class, sometimes much to our annoyance and her own embarrassment. She loves to talk, and, after getting one of us in an awkward situation, she very naively exclaims, "What did I say now? I won't say anything any more." But we really do love her in spite of it, and wouldn't change her a bit.

Gwyn can get terribly embarrassed at times and blushes adorably. She is always on the jump, ready to go for a ride, to the movies or just cut classes. She is usually excited about one thing or another. And yawn—well let someone just mention the word and she's off.

Even though she tries to add a few inches to her height with high heels and attempts to assume a bit of sophistication, we hope she will always remain as we know her,—a little girl eating a caramel sucker from the Senior candy store.

Alpha Epsilon Pi; Glee Club 1, 2; Class Basketball 2; Class Secretary 2; Orchestra 2, 3, 4.

LOUISE MARGARET SMULL

"SMULLIE"

B. A. Bethlehem, Penna.

Moravian Seminary

"She has that intangible something that some call personality, but those who know her, call it charm."

Smullie liked Moravian so well that after she graduated from the Seminary, she continued with the College course. Everyone adores her—both in the Seminary and College—and other colleges for that matter. She has an honest-to-goodness school girl complexion and the color tinting to delight an artist.

It takes two kinds of students to make a college and Smullie is the other kind. She enjoys life and fun and never worries. Even her domestic duties cannot interfere with her good spirits. Have you ever seen her angry? Not in your life. She is always pleasant and smiling, but wait until she teaches school.

Moravian has only one complaint to make about Smullie and that is that she did not play basketball in her Senior year. Golly, she's a cracker-jack on the floor—gym and dance, by the way. Here's one last sincere wish for good old Smullie—we hope you get that ideal man!

JULIA ELEANOR STEFKO

"JULIE"

B. A. Bethlehem, Penna.

Liberty High School

"A perfect woman, nobly planned
To warn, to comfort, and command."

Poise is the key-note of Julie's character. Her calm and serenity remain completely unruffled by surprising and startling events. She is always exquisitely dressed and is the perfect, gracious hostess when she presides over any gathering.

That is one Julia, but there is also the charming, laughing hoyden whose humorous imitations of slightly inebriated gentlemen have caused many a dignified Senior to fold up with mirth. Julia is quite receptive to the lure of something new or different. Her interest is certain to be aroused by any project which offers a challenge.

Julia seems to be adept in many things. She is an excellent violinist, plays the piano well and has a voice of unusually lovely timbre. And let it hereby be known—Julia's pastry is the ultimate in the culinary art.

ANNA CHRISTINA SUPPLEE

"ANNE"

B. A. Philadelphia, Penna.

Frankford High School

"All who joy would win
Must share it.
Happiness was born a twin."

An infectious little laugh generally gives away Anne's location. Perhaps it is because of a good joke. And when Anne laughs, the world laughs with her.

It is her easy going personality which has held her in good stead while presiding over a stormy Senior class meeting. But when decision and determination are needed, Anne is not lacking.

Her powers of persuasive speech are outstanding. She is almost able to convince you against your better judgment. It is indeed fortunate that she does not take advantage of this ability often. One seldom finds this young lady studying. However, her work is not neglected.

As hostess at a tea, dinner party, dance or as the attractive star in one of the dramatic productions, Anne is at her best. Poise, dignity and grace are set off by a charming smile.

CLASS HISTORY

Freshman Year.

Dear Martha,

HOW strange and new everything seems. It is our first year at Moravian College for Women. We have met our new classmates, who have come all the way from New Hampshire and Phillipsburg. For a few weeks we were bewildered in the maze of halls, but we soon felt at home. We were supplied with books, pencils and professors. To these, the Sophomores promised to add poise, polish and persecution. They took us back to baby caps, bibs and sashes. But we came up smiling, even after rolling peanuts around the fountain with our noses. The Juniors became our friends and proposed an alliance with us. To unite the two classes, a wedding was held—how we fought and scratched to keep back the Sophs so that our bridal party could safely reach the altar! Everyone seemed to like us better after that. We entertained and were entertained and under our president, Edith Emery, we planned our class business and social life. Spring brought us our first glimpse of the campus, all in bloom and our first final college exams.

With best of love,
Susan.

Sophomore Year.

Dearest Martha,

We have returned to college as Sophomores, feeling very superior and officious. Only 19 of our former class of 27 returned, but we got together with Doris Miller, our new president, settled down and put down the Frosh. What a paddling we gave those Freshmen in the Sunken Garden! We punished them still more by stealing the bride for the Junior-Freshman wedding, but we let her escape, so that the ceremony could be performed and we could be chief mourners. We showed our friendship for the Frosh, by giving them a Doggie Roast. However, still fearing us, only a few Freshmen turned out. At the Senior Hat-Burning, we assisted our sister class by being their French maids. Card parties, bake sales and other events soon brought the year to a close and we said good-bye to underclass activities.

Lovingly,
Sue.

Junior Year.

Dear Mart,

We are now Upperclassmen—the all-knowing, awe-inspiring Juniors. Under Dorothy Bretz, our president, we assumed the duties and privileges of Upperclassmen. We welcomed our new sister class at a progressive dinner party and dance. With them we planned and plotted for the wedding. What handsome men we, Juniors, made in the Bridal party! During this year, we chose Dr. Heath, as our honorary member. We bade our Seniors farewell at a banquet at Hotel Bethlehem. Other important affairs were our egg-hunt and bridge party. Who will ever forget the wonderful time we had picking daisies? Class Day, this year, held a new thrill for us, for we were willed all the honors of Seniors and we saw our own class day and commencement drawing near.

Affectionately,
Susan.

Senior Year.

Dear Martha,

Back for our last but biggest year. We are now Seniors and we assumed the dignity and seriousness of Seniors at a unique Hat-Burning—a gypsy-camp with its blazing fire. We cast aside all foolishness and frivolity, when we donned caps and gowns, and faithfully we wore them at processional every Friday. This year our class came very close together and we took business and work seriously. We chose Anne Supplee as President and we ran a Candy Shop, held a Senior Ball, Depression Dance and Fish Pond for our Senior Memorial Fund. The Juniors treated us at a most delightful banquet and we returned it with a lawn party. Our last few weeks at college were enjoyable, but sad. Baccalaureate, Class Day, Senior Breakfast and Commencement bring our happy college days to an end.

Most affectionately,
Susan.

CLASS PROPHECY

"YO, HUM," said Charon as he wearily steered his barge towards the opposite bank of the river Styx. "It's about time they put a steamer line on this river. I'm getting tired of rowing a lot of stupid creatures from one side to the other. Not one interesting personage within the last three months to compensate all this expended energy. I hope that gang of Moravian celebrities proves more entertaining.." With these words he glanced at his trusty old Ingersoll and hurried up his rowing. (Poor man, he didn't know what he was in for.)

As he neared the shore, he saw in the distance a group of female shadows approaching the river bank. "It must be they," he said, in grammatical English," for they are just about due to arrive." With that, he bounded out of the boat, and advancing towards the shadows, swept his Stetson to the ground in the most gallant fashion.

"Doesn't he look like Elwood!" exclaimed Ella Hewitt, the model wife and housekeeper, in an ecstatic voice to Mim Landis, Einstein's colaborator.

"Yes, indeed," Mim affirmed. "The resemblance can easily be explained by the ideational dimension of associations. Don't you think so, Caroline?" she asked, turning to Miss McNamee, the former Senator of New Jersey and eminent suffrage leader.

"I agree with you quite heartily," said Caroline, "but Elwood is better looking." Charon, at the turn-stile, pretended not to have heard.

"Get your tickets and newspaper clippings ready for inspection," he demanded in a business-like tone. The shadows then formed a long line to his left to await their turn. Charon, with assumed dignity, put on his gold-rimmed spectacles and proceeded to read aloud the following clippings:

'Miss Julia Stefko, of the Metropolitan, who recently made a successful concert tour of Europe, has been accredited with the discovery of the lost chord.' "Well, that qualifies you, Miss Stefko." Next.'

'Miss Eve King, former Editor of the New York Times, has renounced her career for a married life of bliss. She now concocts choice dishes instead of the usual editorials.' Next.

'Louise Smull and Gwynnie Samuels, respective head librarians of two well-known universities, are the co-discoverers of the Book-worm. It was found reposing on the top shelf, after having digested half the Dialogues of Plato.'

'Miss Mary Elek, former Ziegfeld chorine, has answered the call of the wild by making a long sojourn to the jungles of Africa, where she intends to hunt big game.'

'Miss Nellie Goodman, Ph.D., eminent educator of the modern woman, was recently made President-Emeritus of the Moravian College for Women at Bethlehem, Pa.'

'Miss Lizzie Hartman, renowned critic of dramatic art, committed the gross error of sharing the same viewpoint with the public mind. Miss Hartman endangers her reputation as literary dictator.'

'Miss Doris Miller, author of two noteworthy works on education, has accepted the editorship of the American Mercury on condition that she wear the same red suspenders bequeathed by H. L. Menchen.'

'Miss Steve Giering, famous archeologist, has discovered and contributed to science the marvelous secret of the Sphinx. This secret will be revealed in the Sunday edition of this paper..... Next.

'Miss Dorothy Bretz, international connoisseur of latest styles, was seen recently at the polo matches with a foreign title.'

'Miss Evelyn Alexy, who showed such a remarkable propensity for evading the unpleasant during her college career, is devoting her life to perfecting the cut-system. All the prominent universities are rapidly adopting her most recent development in this line.'

'Miss Catharine Koffel, noted musician, has accepted the position as conductor of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra. She will begin conducting as soon as her hair has grown the usual artistic length.'

'Miss Anne Supplee, our Sarah Bernhardt of America, has recently returned from Dublin, Ireland, with the jeweled fraternity pin of George Bernard Shaw.'

'Miss Gladys Hartman has accepted the cane-bottomed chair as professor of Romance Languages at the American University at Cairo.'

'Miss Marjorie Bliss, famous historian, has just published six volumes on the history of the State of Arizona. The royalties received from each new edition will enable her to take an occasional trip to said state.'

Charon counted the figures standing in the boat and discovered that one was missing. He had received word that nineteen would arrive, but here were only eighteen. Just then a shadow came running into view and hastened towards the boat. "I'm the late Edie Emery, an astrologist," it said. "I was looking for the destinies of the class of 1931, and almost forgot myself."

Charon took his place at the helm of the boat, and after a lusty push with his oar, the barge containing the class of 1931 headed towards the opposite bank.

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

WE, the undersigned, Class of 1931, Seniors of Moravian College for Women, of the City of Bethlehem, County of Northampton, State of Pennsylvania, being of sound mind and memory, do hereby make, publish, and declare this to be our last will and testament to wit:—

First:—To the class of 1932, we give and bequeath the extraordinary appointments and furnishings of our day room including the burglar proof lockers, the collapsing chairs, the ample table and the remarkable quadruple service mirror. Also we give and devise to the aforementioned class our dignity, our seats of honor in chapel, the right to present a fitting memorial to our Alma Mater, and the privilege of producing a Yearbook.

Second:—To the class of 1933, our beloved sister class, we give and bequeath permission to hold the annual Easter egg hunt, and to assume our successful confectionery business.

Third:—To the members of the faculty who have been so near and dear to us we bequeath:—

To our President, the Rev. Mr. Heath, the hope that his efforts as chief executive may bear fruit in a steady increase in the enrollment of the college.

To our Dean, Mrs. Johnstone, a class of Sophomores who will appreciate her instruction in Shakespearean Drama.

To our Registrar, Dr. Cooley, a card index, so large that he may use it to systematize everything with which he comes in contact.

To our Bursar, Miss Harrar, an assistant to aid her in her many duties.

To Dr. Rau, history classes with less exuberant spirits and more historical knowledge; also, an airdale fit to replace beloved "Rip."

To Mrs. Whitney, a few German classes less somnolent than have been the rule.

To Dr. Moore, our sincere wishes for more attentive English classes.

To Mr. Hassler, the hope for a well-equipped chemical laboratory and an appreciative class so that he may perform experiments of great moment.

To Dr. Schwarze, a few students interested in Psychology, that his noble efforts may be rewarded.

To Miss Talmage, a successful basketball season, and a Physiology class capable of taking dictation without repetition.

To Miss Coldwell, Spanish classes that assemble on time.

To Mrs. Neville, larger Mathematics classes.

To Miss Clemmency, a wealth of botanical specimens with which to illustrate her lectures.

To Miss Kratz, a studio worthy of her rising vocalists.

To Mrs. Meyer, a few brilliant actresses to replace the departing "stars" of the Expression Department.

To Mr. Shields, a music department whose sole interest in life is Bach.

Fourth:—To the Senior Treasurer for the coming year, we bequeath Evelyn Alexy's business ability, especially that specific ability of collecting class dues.

Fifth:—To Frieda Manescu, we bequeath that stalwart figure and ambitious gait of Marjorie Bless.

Sixth:—To the all too timid and unassertive Eleanor Mumbauer, we bequeath Dorothy Bretz's commanding voice.

Seventh:—To Helen Lawsberg, we bequeath Mary Elek's melodious, rippling laughter.

Eighth:—To Ethel Dutt, who seems to be entirely too wide awake, we bequeath Edith Emery's facility at falling asleep anywhere at anytime.

Ninth:—To Helen Ackerman, we bequeath Genevieve Giering's inimitable manner of entering and leaving classes.

Tenth:—To solemn Helen Polcrack, we bequeath Ellen Goodman's hysterical laughter that persists for no reason at all.

Eleventh:—To Betty Gegler, we bequeath Elizabeth Hartman's affection for dogs, particularly airdales.

Twelfth:—To Caroline Dotterer, we bequeath Gladys Hartman's crowning glory.

Thirteenth:—To the President of the Student Government Association for the coming year, we bequeath the conscientious spirit with which Ella Hewitt fulfilled the duties of that position this year.

Fourteenth:—To the Editor of the Year Book for the ensuing year, we bequeath Evelyn King's successful editorship in the hope that she will use it to good advantage.

Fifteenth:—To Margaret Kleppinger, we bequeath Catherine Koffel's position as class entertainer and general noise-maker.

Sixteenth:—To Anna Gehman, we bequeath those mincing manners which Miriam Landis effects.

Seventeenth:—To Helen Saxon, we bequeath Caroline McNamee's inordinate affection for cats.

Eighteenth:—To the Editor of the Mirror for next year, we bequeath the example of the painstaking work of Doris Miller.

Nineteenth:—To Nettie Brown, we bequeath Gwyneth Samuels' buxom figure.

Twentieth:—To Mary Percival, we bequeath Louise Smull's basketball prowess in the hope that she will use it to rid herself of some excess avoirdupois.

Twenty-first:—To Bernardine Moy, we bequeath Julia Stefko's style.

Twenty-second:—To Sylvia Baker, we bequeath Anne Supplee's stentorian voice, in order that Sylvia's ideas may be heard by the rest of the world.

Twenty-third:—To our Alma Mater, we bequeath our Senior Memorial as a token of our esteem for the benefits received from her, pledging at the same time our whole-hearted support in all her future activities.

We name the Rev. Mr. Heath, our honorary member, as executor of this, our last will and testament, hereby revoking all former wills made by us.

In Witness Whereof, We hereunto set our hand and seal this sixth day of June in the year of our Lord, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Thirty-One.

CLASS POEM

Genevieve Giering

NOW'S the end of four short years
Of learning, at Moravian,
We've come to the parting of the ways,
Yet why shed farewell tears?

You know we meet but soon to part,
Yet each goes not alone:
Laughter, joy and friendship
Stay with us ever in our heart.

Memory's but a fickle thing,
Friendship's staunch and true,
Hate and sorrow soon fly past;
Smile, you must, and sing!

So, while the memories last,
Think of the fun we've had:
Dances, parties, games and teas,
Though they now are part of the past.

Sunny, rainy, snowy days,
Quizzes, papers and exams;
Even though we sometimes grumbled,
We passed, and that's what really pays.

"So smile!" I say, and even though
You feel like weeping tears in torrents,
Hold them back, and wish each other
"Success!" before we all must go.

COLLEGE HAT-BURNING SONG

(Tune—All Hail, Arizona)

ALL hail, dear Moravian, our Alma Mater true
Our Class will always show its love for you
All hail, dear Moravian, we pledge our faith anew
To watch o'er you and keep you, Moravian Hail.

She is small, our Alma Mater
But she rules with strength and might
She'll bring us memories, tender, sweet and bright
She'll always be honor and precious in our sight
So sing the refrain—Moravian Hail.

Ella Hewitt.

COLLEGE DAYS NEAR AN END

(Tune—All Hail, Arizona)

O DEAR, Alma Mater, the parting hour draws near,
And we as Seniors, leave your home with fear.
But life's full of gladness, if we but make it so,
There's not a wave of sorrow but has an undertow.

'Tis not a cross to live, nor is it so hard to die,
If we view the future with a fearless eye,
Looking ever on the bright side, where falls the sun's warm beam,
Our boats will ride the billows as they float along the stream.

So, farewell, Moravian, and fellow classmates, too,
We now must look at life with trials anew.
The days that once seemed endless have passed just like a dream;
The years rolled by with silent pace and changes came between.

Catharine Koffel.

TREE ORATION

WE, the Class of '31, plant this willow tree today, as a last link to bind us in memory to the college which is our Alma Mater.

Just as this tree will always grow here, so we hope that the memory of our four years at Moravian may never be forgotten, but will linger on in happy thought.

This tree we plant stands for joyous hours and saddened moments. We shall assuredly think back to the years we spent here—years of happiness, though sometimes tinged with bits of other emotions.

As some day the leaves on this tree will be blown back and forth, so our minds and hearts are blowing to and fro, 'twixt reluctance to say good-bye and wonder and a bit of awe as to what may lie just around the corner in the future.

But I know that in our hearts the words of "Auld Lang Syne" will ever be present.

Yet, even though this tree remains after our going, there will always be others to fill our vacant place at Moravian, for "memory is only an autumn leaf that murmurs awhile in the wind, and then is heard no more."

Genevieve E. Giering.

DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE OF THE CLASS OF 1931

WE hold these to be self-evident: That all students are created equal; that they are endowd by the Board of Education with certain inalienable rights, among these, youth, happiness and the pursuit of knowledge. That to secure these rights schools were instituted among men, deriving their unjust powers without the consent of the ungoverned, and wherever any system of schools becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the pupils to abolish it and introduce a new system, based on such principles as will seem most likely to effect their safety and happiness. The history of the present Faculty of Moravian is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations. To prove this, let us submit these facts to the candid world.

It, the Faculty, has forced administration of juctice.

It has forced us to go regularly to Chapel.

It has forbid our eating candy in classes.

It has refused its assent to rules, the most wholesome and necessary to the public good:—

Cutting classes.
Talking in Chapel during a dry speech.
Attending classes whenever desired.

It has endeavored to prevent the population of the class-rooms, for that purpose instituting laws for the expulsion of those flunking exams.

It has excited domestic insurrection among us by leading the "Frosh" to believe that they are on the same plane as the SENIORS.

It has imposed Professors upon us without consulting our wishes in the matter.

It has repeatedly dissolved social gatherings, especially bridge games.

It has ruined the calm of our happy home life with reports and by sending "VALENTINES to PARENTS."

In every stage of these oppressions we have petitioned redress in most humble terms. Our repeated appeals have been answered only by harder and longer redress.

WE, therefore, the SENIOR CLASS of 1931, do, in the name and by the authority of the students of this class, solemnly publish and declare that these students are, and of right, ought to be free and independent.

The foregoing Declaration was engrossed and signed by the passing CLASS OF 1931.

"I had a nice time."

Who does not know Marjorie, our Class President—always to be depended upon and with good advice for all of us? She is admired by everyone in the school for her scholastic standing and the conscientiousness with which she accomplishes everything she sets out to do.

Her intellectual aspirations do not interfere with her social or athletic interests for she is one of the best sports among us. Because of her cheerful personality and ready smile, she is welcome anywhere, and, we are glad to say, is one of those rare beings whose calm disposition is never ruffled by petty disturbances.

"Marge" has been one of the most popular representatives at many of the college dances, and, because of her modesty, it takes a long time to learn that she had a perfectly marvelous time.

Moravian Seminary is certainly proud to have "Marge" as one of its graduates. We know, too, that Smith College will be glad to welcome her next year.

"Well, by golly if——"

Who made that pun? Mary Frances, of course. No one else in the school possesses such a keen sense of humor and ability to enliven the Seniors with a new joke every minute. You just can't help loving and admiring Muff, who attracts you with a grin and a "come-on-let's-have-a-good-time - while-we-may" air.

Her name is always on the honor roll, and, also on the program for theatricals. Every day finds Muff getting rid of her exuberance and good spirits whether on the basket-ball floor or the hockey field.

To turn to Muff's more serious side,—she is able to discuss intelligently any good books or current affairs, and has written many clever things herself. May your life in the future, Muff, be as happy as you have helped to make others while at Moravian.

"We're going to make something good in cooking."

Although Marjorie came to Moravian Seminary only two years ago, she has already won a lasting place in our hearts. Her flashing smile warms everyone upon whom it is bestowed and her laughter is irresistible. Marge's good looks won her the title of the prettiest girl in the Seminary last year, and, although she will not admit it, we all know that she deserved it. We cannot decide with whom she is the most popular—the Seminary or Lehigh. Her choice, however, seems to be a certain Sophomore about whom we hear a great deal.

Marjorie puts a lot of her energy and ambition into her secretarial studies, but she can always be depended upon when athletics are in question. Her voice is the big attraction of all our operettas and is one of the reasons they are always such an overwhelming success.

We know you will delight some man with your secretarial work, You're just the type!

"You know."

School would not be school without Harriet's infectious giggle and merry blue eyes to cheer us up. If you hear a snicker in the day-room, a snort in English class, or a wheeze from the rear of the room in Chemistry—it's Harriet.

Harriet delights in reading and we often find her turned-up nose buried in some apparently intellectual book. She is quiet, but she takes a keen interest in all the school events and is just brimming over with school spirit. Harriet always finds plenty of time for athletics and her hearty voice is often heard cheering our team on to victory.

She is usually surrounded by a group of friends, but her inseparable chum is her lunch-box. Brave girl, she doesn't even lock it up, although she knows how hungry we Seniors always are.

Remember, Harriet, we are rooting for you to accomplish great things in the future!

"I'm serious."

Marie has come a long way to us, but we are certainly glad that she deserted the Virgin Islands for "Fem Sem." She is bubbling over with school spirit and turns out for everything — dramatics, hockey and basketball. Due greatly to Marie's tireless efforts and cleverness the Seminary, at last, possesses a weekly newspaper, "The Rocket," which is full of the activities and interests of the school.

Marie has a "way" with her and she is popular with both students and faculty, because of her winning personality and earnest determination to achieve her aim. Her good looks, too, are apparently a credit to the school, judging from the number of teas at which she is asked to serve.

We'll look for Marie at Moravian College next year and hope she will make as many good friends in college and after life as she has made among us.

"I wish someone would come up for the week-end."

What's all the racket out front? Oh, it's only Betty Haines trying to park her Ford! She is usually to be found anywhere between here and New York with a crowd of noisy girls riding in her popular car.

Betty is one of those creatures gentlemen prefer—a blonde, with blue eyes, rosy cheeks, and a cupid's-bow mouth. Her good-looking clothes are the envy of all her friends and she is a perfect example of what the well-dressed girl will wear.

She does not take an active interest in sports, yet it is to be remembered that her brains make up for her lack of brawn. Being satisfied only with the best, she usually obtains it.

Sociable, generous and hospitable, Betty is willing to put herself out to help any-one. We hope all your signals are green, Betty, and that you will meet all the rough bumps with a smile.

"Oh, yes, and wasn't it funny when—!"

Connie is—well, Connie. And if you don't know that perfectly lovely girl, you should.

It's Connie who makes the Senior class go round and it's Connie who keeps us all sitting on top of the world. She's always laughing—if there isn't anything to laugh at, she furnishes the cause for amusement herself, usually in the form of puns. We might call upon the Faculty to testify in this matter.

Connie is as intelligent as she's attractive and her marks arouse envy even in the hearts of many of our bright students. The peculiar part of it is that she never seems to study—she's always playing basketball, dashing around the hockey field, planning to go swimming or hurrying off to play rehearsal.

Connie does everything well, but one of her best accomplishments is acquiring friends—perhaps, because she, herself, is such a splendid friend to everyone. With such a firm bond of friendship Connie is, as she would put it, "bond" to succeed.

"Jiggs is lost."

Mary, the smallest member of the class, manages to do a lot for her size. She is the only one of us who entered the Expression Department and she has appeared in many productions.

Mary maintains a good average in her work — her special interest being in economics. We feel sure she will be an asset to Penn State.

She is a hard worker and a conscientious supporter of all school activities, but that does not seem to hinder her from having a good time and being a cheerful friend to everyone.

She is good-natured and easy-going with a special passion for dogs. Her "Jiggs" is one of her favorite topics of conversation, especially when he is lost, —which is about every two months.

Our good wishes to you, Mary, for all the success in the world.

CLASS HISTORY

Dramatis Personae: Mary Frances Hurdell, Connie Roberts, Betty Haines, Marjorie Hall, Marjorie Kuehl, Marie Allen, Mary Stoll, Harriet Putnam.

Setting: Moravian Seminary Chapel, September 16. There is much bustle and confusion as the girls, giggling excitedly, arrange their skirts and plant their feet comfortably on the seats in front of them. The faculty primly decorate the platform and from time to time glance malignantly at their future victims.

SCENE I

The Freshmen straggle in late, eager, in their ignorance, to be pupils in the Seminary and looking for more worlds to conquer. A few days later the Freshmen are being entertained by the old girls at a dance in the gymnasium, at which everyone meets everyone else and a grand time is had by all. In the middle of the year, Mary Stoll is seen peering over the city from the belfry, looking for her dog, Jiggs, and Betty Haines is shocking the class at the failure of her master mind, when she receives only a 98% average. In April the Freshmen have the misfortune to receive a severe blow when Mary Frances Hurdell bursts into the midst. All year long Harriet Putnam worries about whom her next crush is to be and she finally decides on Iggie Garrett. After the school picnic, the tennis ball and the June festival, the year happily draws to a close.

SCENE II

The struggle is manfully taken up again in the fall. The Sophomore class, although impressed with their new dignity, are still as noisy and as late for classes as in the preceding year. A young damsel by the name of Marjorie Hall, startles the class by letting her hair grow. Soon others start this long, tiresome struggle and after many hair cuts they finally obtain their ends. Mary Stoll is again see searching frantically for her beloved Jiggs. In June the Seniors take the class on a picnic to the Reservoir, in the vain hope that they will fall in, and after much fussing the Soph. class decides to give the Seniors a swimming party. After the club is completely wrecked, as was anticipated, both classes drip home. The year closes with the fair females striving in a vain attempt to pass some College Board exams.

SCENE III

1930 dawns. Many yells can be heard from the sunken garden, as the players of the newly institutedgame of hockey swat each other on the shins with vim and vigor. Those who can participate in hockey still are valiantly playing hookey. The Seminary's first basketball team has a successful season despite the playing of Connie Roberts. We are trying very hard to forget the fact that Marjorie Kuehl has arrived but we can't, because every time we see a "bus" we think of her. For some unknown reason, Betty Haines' father presents her with the school taxi, which is bearing up very well under the weight of the Senior class. In April, the school holds Book Week and the Seminary presents a play called "A Little Game with Fate," which goes off with surprisingly few promptings and gains much applause from the audience. The year 1930 finally closes and after the Juniors' books are gathered from the dungeons, the chapel and waste baskets, the school breathes a sigh of relief and lapses into its unaccustomed silence.

SCENE IV

The school gains new courage at the thought that this is the last year for the Senior class, when yells are heard issuing from the day room. The College finally consents to let us have our own A. A. Board and our own Y. W. C. A., which are doing surprisingly well. A new Seminary paper, the Racket, misnamed the Rocket, due to a type error, is started with Marie Allen as one of the editors. The Seminary Spring dance is attended by the Seniors, after vain attempts are made by the rest of the school to keep them away, but to the surprise of everyone the dance is a success. The operetta is finally presented under the direction of the distracted Miss Schlegel, who frantically coaches Miss Hurdell, Miss Roberts, Miss Haines and Miss Kuehl, from the sidelines. If nothing unforeseen happens, the whole class will graduate amid the cheers of the faculty, led by our worthy President. All those who are still awake may notice that the drama of the Class of 1931 is drawing to a close.

Conistan Roberts,
Mary Frances Hurdell.

CLASS PROPHECY

NEWS FLASHES OF 1941

THIS is station WJZ broadcasting from its New York studio. We now present Lowell Thomas, who will review the interesting happenings of the day.

"Good evening, everybody. Today has been an eventful one in the history of the nation. Miss Marjorie Hall, widely known biologist, today discovered a new bug. Miss Hall chanced upon this marvellous discovery while communing with nature on the Lehigh Mountains.

We hear from the United Press that the first taxicab business to be controlled by a woman has been established by Miss Betty Haines. The entire nation is marveling at her daring and thousands of telegrams have been received from admiring friends. What a girl!!!

That world-famous magazine 'Judge' has just obtained as its assistant-editor that clever and versatile lady, Miss Mary Hurdell. Since her first utterance this young woman has been the center of humorous circles. 'Judge' feels confident that it will become a better magazine due to her influence.

A few minutes ago I received a cablegram from England stating that Miss Connie Roberts, noted swimming champion and holder of innumerable world records, has accomplished the unheard-of feat of swimming the Atlantic Ocean in six days, three hours, fifty-five minutes and six seconds. It is rumored that next year she will challenge the speedy 'Leviathan' to a dash across the Pacific.

Little, Brown and Company has just announced a forthcoming work of that famous typist, Miss Harriet Putnam. It is entitled an 'Ode to a Typewriter' and is a venture in a new field of poetry. On the strength of this work Miss Putnam is planning to discontinue her position as personal secretary to Mr. Charles Schwab. She intends to devote all her time to producing this popular poetry.

Blazing headlines in this evening's paper report that Marjorie Kuehl Adams, who has caused quite a stir among the devotees of the Metropolitan Opera, filed suit against her sixth husband in Reno today. Her grounds are that he objected to her singing in the bath-tub and that he spoke unfeelingly of her charming voice.

Yesterday afternoon a strange plague broke out in the spacious mansion of Mary Stoll on Riverside Drive, killing six butlers and three French maids. Late reports show that four footmen may also be afflicted with this mysterious disease. Miss Stoll is greatly agitated and has summoned many noted medical men and scientists. They have attributed this peculiar malady to too sumptuous living. Miss Stoll desires a new retinue at once. She will try to manage until another footman can be found to come up to her expectations.

The Virgin Ambassadress, Mrs. Sopolio Gomez, nee Marie Allen, arrived in Washington this morning with her three children. She will address Congress on the favorable conditions prevalent in the Virgin Islands. She will, also, present a plea for the removal of prohibition from the Islands so that the manufacturer of rum (which she assures us is unrivaled in taste and effect) may continue. She is planning to place her children, Rosita, Filipino, and the youngest and frailest, Can't-eat-anything, in her Alma Mater, Moravian Seminary."

This is station WJZ signing off for today. We will be with you again at this same time tomorrow.

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

WE, the undersigned Class of Nineteen Hundred and Thirty-one, Seniors of Moravian Seminary for Women, of the City of Bethlehem, County of Northampton, State of Pennsylvania, being possessed of unsound minds, faint hearts and weak knees, do make, publish, and declare the following as our last will and testament. These qualities in all solemnity we bequeath:—

First:—To the Junior Class, our dignity and perfect poise.

Second:—To the Sophomore Class, our high scholastic record.

Third:—To the Freshman Class, our quietness and good behavior.

Fourth:—To the Faculty, bigger and better Seniors.

Fifth:—To Eleanor Leisenring we bequeath Mary Frances Hurdell's height.

Sixth:—To Eva Braun we bequeath Marjorie Hall's respectable attitude toward Miss Helena.

Seventh:—To Janet Strauss we bequeath Connie Roberts' grin.

Eighth:—To Lucille Markowitz we bequeath Marjorie Kuehl's singing ability.

Ninth:—To Elissa Loomis we bequeath Marie Allen's aloofness and dignity.

Tenth:—To Mae Pasquerella we bequeath Mary Stoll's good disposition.

Eleventh:—To Charlotte Sylvester we bequeath Harriet Putnam's well-modulated voice.

Twelfth:—To Peggy Owen we bequeath Betty Haines' sophistication.

Thirteenth:—To Miss Watson we bequeath Betty Haines' ability to drive a car.

Fourteenth:—To Miss Clemmency we bequeath Marjorie Hall's ability to spout chemistry.

Fifteenth:—To Professor Hassler we bequeath Mary Frances Hurdell's ability to keep awake.

Sixteenth:—To Miss Darling we bequeath Marie Allen's wind-blown bob

Seventeenth:—To Miss Talmage we bequeath Mary Stoll's steady walk.

Eighteenth:—To Miss Emma we bequeath Marjorie Kuehl's languid air.

Nineteenth:—To Mrs. Hogan we bequeath Connie Roberts' sunny disposition.

Twentieth:—To Miss Coldwell we bequeath Harriet Putnam's close-fitting ears.

We name Miss Mueller as executor of this, our last will and testament, hereby rêvoking all former wills made by us.

It Witness Whereof, We hereunto set our hand and seal this sixth day of June in the name of Our Lord, One Thousand Nine Hundred and Thirty-one.

THREE glorious years has the class of 1932 passed within the doors of Moravian. They have been milestones of marked successes. Although the point of perfection is never reached, the Junior Class has conscientiously upheld the three great activities of Moravian—the scholastic, the social and the athletic.

If we can judge fairly by past successes, then '32 is well fitted to steer the helm of Seniority and continue its devotion to our beloved Alma Mater.

TRAVELING back over two years of time there is much that the class of '33 can review with pride. Working with our Alma Mater during this time, we can justly say that scholastically, socially and athletically we have most remarkably claimed a place at the top.

With these honors to our name, we turn to the future with hopes of further distinguishing our class and making a greater name for ourselves. The past has been kind to us; we trust the future will be more so.

IT IS with a sense of pride that the class of '34 looks back at the remarkable progress attained in this past year. The representation, not alone in athletics, but in dramatics and social affairs, is a safe criteron of what success will follow in the next three years. In a word, it is our opinion that the Freshmen will be well equipped to advance into the position of Sophomores, then Juniors, and finally—Seniors.

If it is true that "a thing well begun is a thing half done," then the class of '34 can look forward to a promising future.

EVER since the class of 1932 entered the Seminary as Freshmen, they have been steadily forging ahead, leaving in their wake a wide trail of envied achievements. Under the guidance of capable leaders they have claimed a prominent place in all the affairs of the school. Under full sail, with colors flying, they are preparing to take their place as Seniors and to become true leaders of Moravian.

But they are not content to rest upon their laurels. They are entering upon new ventures which, they hope, will give the class of '32 a name of which to be proud and one to be handed down as an example to the entering classes.

SOPHOMORE CLASS, SEMINARY

OFFICERS

President ..... Elisa Loomis
Treasurer ..... Eva Peters
Adviser ..... Mrs. Neville

THERE is much that we can view with pleasure in looking back over the two years we spent at Moravian. Having lent a hand athletically, scholastically and socially, we may justly claim a place near the top.

We have furnished material which helped to form the backbone of the school publication. This support we promise to continue throughout our school career.

Considering the progress which our class has made in these two years, we have every reason to believe that by the time we are Seniors, our place will be at the top of the ladder.

FROSH CLASS, SEMINARY

President ....Eleinor Holton

THE class of 1934 has a large enrollment, and its members need not feel inferior to their upper classmates. On entering Moravian they prepared for a four years' struggle—for better or for worse.

We believe that they will continue in their duty, so that at the end of their course they may feel that they have contributed their share to the uplift of Moravian Seminary.

THE STUDENT SELF-GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

OFFICERS

President ..... Ella Hewitt
Vice-President ..... Virginia Hauser
Treasurer ..... Bernadine Titlow
Secretary ..... Sabina Dechnik
Adviser ..... Mrs. Mildred Johnstone

THE Student Self-Government, as is implied by its name, is an organization whose membership is made up of every girl in college. All students entering as Freshmen shall be regarded as associated members until the student council deems them ready for full active membership.

The executive powers of this organization are embodied in the Student Council. The President is elected from the Senior Class, the Vice-President from the Junior, Treasurer from the Sophomore, and the Secretary from the Freshman class. There is also another representative from each class.

The purpose of the Student Self-Government of Moravian has always been to develop self-control and loyalty in the students, to instill in them the highest principles of honor and self-development, and to enforce such regulations as do not fall exclusively under the province of the administration.

Because of the developing and widening effect that the Student Self-Government Association has upon character, one might say that it is the most important organization of college life.

LANGUAGE CLUB

OFFICERS

President ..... Margaret M. Preuss
Vice-President .....Frances Schlenker
Secretary .....Virginia Rogers
Treasurer .....Marjorie T. Allen

MUCH credit is due to Dr. A. S. Cooley for organizing and keeping the fires of this club going. Although it was organized but a few years ago, it is now one of the largest and most popular organizations at Moravian.

Any one pursuing languages, or otherwise interested, is eligible and welcome to join.

Speakers are always secured for the meetings and a very enjoyable time is had.

May this organization prosper and grow in its good work as long as Moravian exists.

GLEE CLUB

OFFICERS

President .....Helen Saxon
Business Manager .....Caroline Dotterer
Treasurer .....Mary Foley
Adviser .....Professor T. Edgar Shields

THE Glee Club, which is composed of those students who are not eliminated by tryouts, had an active program to fill this year.

On several occasions, the invitation issued took the Glee Club to various out-of-town places, two of which were Netcong, New Jersey, and New York City.

The Nazareth Woman's Club was especially cordial, and in response to entertainment, served an excellent chicken dinner.

The club is fortunate in having, as a leader, Profssor T. Edgar Shields, organist of the Bach Choir.

ALPHA EPSILON PI

President ..... Julia Stefko
Vice-President ..... Miriam Landis
Treasurer ..... Mary Percival
Secretary ..... Mary Foley
Honorary Member ..... Miss Dorothy Talmage

THE Alpha Epsilon Pi Sorority places above all, high scholarship, true sisterhood, honor and the whole-hearted spirit of upholding the welfare of Moravian. It is ever looking forward to the accomplishment of its aim and attempts to encourage scholarship by offering a gold-piece to the Freshman with the highest honors.

Within the sorority walls of the chapter-house a magic "Sesame" is offered to the sorority girls by holding teas, bridge parties, dances, and rushing parties. The informal business meetings are occasions of serious thinking as well as a happy recreation.

The most anticipated event of the year is the Spring Formal, which closes the social life of the sorority and from which everyone carries the fondest memories.

PHI MU EPSILON

OFFICERS

President ..... Anne Supplee
Vice-President ..... Martha Russell
Treasurer ..... Virginia Rogers
Secretary ..... Helen Ackerman
Corresponding Secretary ..... Eleanor Mumbauer

The Phi Mu Epsilon Sorority was founded at Moravian College for Women in 1910 by the following students: Grace Trippe (Mrs. H. G. Bleakly), Florence Strauss (Mrs. H. Manvel), Ruth Manger (Mrs. Siegfried Johnson), Martha Dehart (Mrs. Henry Fischer), Kathryn Frutchey (Mrs. A. G. Miller), Laura Fondeville and Alice Romig (Mrs. Fred Schultze). These seven charter members instigated the sorority to promote furtherance of friendship and a spirit of good-fellowship among the members and students of the institution.

At the present date there are approximately two hundred and fifty members of Phi Mu Epsilon.

Y. W. C. A.

OFFICERS

President ..... Martha Russell
Vice-President ..... Ethel Dutt
Treasurer ..... Martha Johnson
Secretary ..... Caroline Dotterer

"To face life squarely,
To find and give the best."

THE "Y. W." of Moravian does much for the school that, while it may not seem to be very important, adds greatly to the life of the Moravian girl. As an organization, it tries to create throughout the school an atmosphere of good will and friendliness and in this endeavor, meets with great success. Numerous parties to celebrate different occasions, chapel programs once a week, and various methods of student activity are its chief specialties.

Y. W. C. A., SEMINARY

President ..... Coniston Roberts
Vice-President ..... Marjorie Kuehl
Secretary ..... Elisa Loomis
Treasurer ..... Eva Peters

THIS organization reaches every person on the campus in various ways, and desires to help each one from the very beginning of the school term to the close of the collegiate year.

The Seminary Association co-operates with the Y. W. C. A. of the college by taking charge of various chapel meetings. This group encourages the presentation of attractive chapel programs of social usage, and offers valuable aid in carrying out the fundamental purpose and ideals of the Y.

Each year girls are elected to a committee which functions as an executive board of the organization. These girls strive to act as an influence to other members of the student body. May their efforts meet with continued success.

THE PLAYERS

OFFICERS

President .....Dorothy Hess
Vice-President .....Anne Supplee
Secretary .....Mary Percival
Treasurer .....Violet Geisinger
Adviser .....Mrs. Maybelle Meyer

COMMENCEMENT this year will bring to a close another successful dramatic season. Each year has seen an increase in membership, evidencing the club's popularity. It is the custom to present plays throughout the year, closing the season with the Shakespearean play, which this year is "The Taming of the Shrew." These plays are always well received, and the dramatic efforts of the members are appreciated by the entire audience.

Several members will be lost this year through graduation, but it is sincerely hoped that the remaining ones will keep up the enviable standard heretofore enjoyed by The Players.

Athletics.

COLLEGE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

OFFICERS

President ..... Louise Smull
Vice-President ..... Mary Percival
Secretary ..... LaRue Gery
Treasurer ..... Dorothea Wirth
Faculty Adviser ..... Miss Dorothy Talmage

THE Athletic Association of Moravian College strives to develop athletics so as to benefit each and every student physically. Every girl who enters school automatically becomes a member of this organization and sooner or later partakes in some form of athletics which is most interesting to her.

The Board and its Faculty Adviser is the machine that runs this organization and endeavors to keep the standards of athletics high.

Sportsmanship is the aim of all athletic undertakings at Moravian.

SEMINARY ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

OFFICERS

President ..... Sarah Stauffer
Vice-President ..... Mary Frances Hurdell
Secretary ..... Mary Louise Hazel
Treasurer ..... Kharin Uhlig
Basketball Manager ..... Jane Nicholas
Faculty Adviser ..... Miss Dorothy Talmage

The Seminary, as well as the College, has its own Athletic Association. Its objective is to promote greater school spirit in all athletic activities.

Under the guidance of its officers, this organization has instilled a greater desire to participate in athletics among the Seminary students.

May this organization progress in the future as it has in the past.

BASKETBALL

In victory or defeat, Moravian knows the value of a smile

Coach ..... Mary Martenis
Captain ..... Betty Gegler
Manager ..... Kathryn Schneider
Assistant Manager ..... Virginia Hauser

The team:
R.F. Betty Gegler ..... R. G. Helen Razler
L. F. Martha Russell ..... L. G. Margaret Preuss
C. La Rue Gery ..... S. C. Ruth Dance

Substitutes:—Elizabeth Abbiati, Mildred Schuler, Marjorie Bliss, Dorothy Martin, Mary Messersmith.

The basketball season of 1930-1931 was one which portrayed the real spirit of sportsmanship as possessed by the Moravian girls. The team played a series of seven games during which they met the Ursinus, Cedar Crest, Upsala, Albright and Centenary Collegiate Institute teams. Though they were not all victories for us it was a splendid season, and one enjoyed by all who worked with the team as well as on it.

We extend our sincerest congratulations to the Senior Class of 1931.

TENNIS TEAM

The Tennis Team this year had three matches schdeuled for this season, but was able to play only two of them. The members of the team were:

YE OLDE WISE CRACKS

DIARY OF A MORAVIAN GRAD

June 9, 1931—I graduated today.
June 23, 1931—I looked for a $10,000 job.
July 20, 1931—I looked for a $100 a week job.
August 3, 1931—I looked for any kind of a job.
September 7, 1931—I am still looking.
September 28, 1931—I went to work for $75 a month.

Dumb—Hear about the dog who ate a box of matches?
Dora—Guess he was hungry and wanted a light-lunch.

Kitty (while practice-teaching): "Now that you know that 'educate' means to lead out, can you use it in a sentence, Jimmy?"
Jimmy (earnestly): "The farmer educated the cows to the field."

E. K. (while teaching): "Betty, what are carnivorous animals?"
Betty: "Flesh-eating animals."
E. K.: Now can you name a few of these animals?"
Betty: "Mosquitoes."

A GEOMETRY PRAYER

(To M. A. E. and E. R. H.)

Whoever is my teacher, I shall not pass.
She maketh me to explain hard propositions, and exposeth my ignorance before the class.
She causeth me to draw parallelograms for my class' sake.
Yea, though I study till midnight, I shall gain no knowledge.
For cones trouble me, pyramids and prisms distress me.
She prepareth a test before me in the presence of the A students.
She giveth me a poor grade.
Surely distress and sadness shall follow be all the days of my life.
And I shall remain in the Geometry Class forever.

CONVERSATION IN A PARKED CAR

He: .....
She: .....

Mother: "Pull down that skirt, Jacqueline."
Jackie: "But, mother, I'm not a bit cold."

MODERNISTIC

Host (appearing on darkened veranda): "Are you young folks enjoying yourselves?"
(Absolute silence.)
Host (returning indoors): "That's fine!"

"They say he's buried in books."
"I wonder if they put up a tombstone."

She: "Why did they arrest that blind man?"
He: "The cop saw him blush when a co-ed passed by."

"Who wrote this piece?"
"The program says 'Andante'."
"Who's that?"
"Don't display your ignorance—the daughter of the famous poet, of course."

"Blyme, Bertie, but do you know how to get a book out of the library?"
"Certainly, Cuthbert, just multiply the altitude by the base, and you will get the volume immediately."

Little Betty (in the country for the first time): "Oh, Mamma, look at the cute little green snake."
Mamma (ditto): "Put it down at once, it might be as dangerous as a ripe one."

Gallant Guest (to hostess as they walk to the table): "May I sit on your right hand?"
Hostess: "No, I'll have to eat with that. You'd better take a chair."

"Grandpa's a hundred and three years old today, doctor."
"Isn't that splendid! And does he read or do anything?"
"No, 'e don't seem to 'ave no ambition for nothing."

"When do the leaves begin to turn?"
"The night before exams start."

TOO SMART

"Say, where's the road to Moscow?"
"Dunno."
"Well, where's the road to Dublin?"
"Dunno."
"Where does this road go anyway?"
"Dunno."
"Say, you don't know much, do you?"
"Well, I ain't lost."

Him: "You look like a sensible girl, let's get married."
Her: "Nothing doing. I'm just as sensible as I look."

I knew a fellow named Baker once.
Yes? What's his name now?

She: "But, Father, what am I to do without a riding habit?"
Pop: "Get the walking habit."

They cure Scotch people from stuttering by making them talk over the long distance telephone.

Executioner (to Marie Antoinette): Pardon, may I cut?

Grandmother: "I suppose you have to stay up very late at College?"
Grandson: "Yes, but really, Grandmother, it's worth it."

Elizabeth Arden's Preparations assure clear loveliness of skin

Faces, like bodies should be clean, fed and exercised! And that is what Elizabeth Arden's Venetian Toilet Preparations will do for you.

Cleanse your skin with Elizabeth Arden's Venetian Cleansing Cream that melts into the pores and rids them of dust and impurities. Quicken your circulation with Ardena Skin Tonic. If muscles are unusually relaxed, pat with Special Astringent. For hollows and lines that need to be filled out use Orange Skin Food. Full faces should be smoothed with the non-fat-forming Velva Cream.
